

We're all in this together

How you can be careful and create a trust system among families.

Jill's mom went to a wedding over the weekend and came into contact with 6 different people who have coronavirus.

When she came home, she hugged sweet Jill, and sent her to school.

At school, Jill had a tickle in her nose and sneezed while walking into the building, and her friend Jack was close by and was exposed to the germs.

Jack left school later that day and went straight to his grandfather's house.

Jack's now exposing his grandpa to the virus.

So, let us remember to hold each other accountable as we head back to school. If you think you have been exposed in any way, make sure you take the proper precautions in keeping your family safe, and the families of other students.

We're all in this together!
